Original Language Statement:

The Black Archives of Mid-America follows the widespread practice of using the language provided by speakers and writers of historical documents. Using the speaker's or writer's language can be very informative and provide pivotal contextual information about cultural and societal customs of previous time periods. As a result, researchers may encounter descriptive language, which often includes verbiage that contains obvious bias, or outdated and stereotypical terminology, and/ or content. Contemporary readers and researchers might find this language harmful or offensive.

Biographical Sketch:

William Lamonte Jones (W.L. Jones), born January 9, 1935, in Gerner, NM, raised in Raton, NM, and died in Kansas City, December 27, 2015. Son of Thomas O' Neill Jones, 9th Calvary in WWI, who then worked in the coal mines of Garner, and Bessy Bell Jones, who cleaned houses. After high school, Jones joined the Airforce in 1955, where he became a mechanic for fighter jets. He met his wife Reba June Woodard in 1956 when he was stationed at the Richards-Gebaur AFB near Kansas City, MO. Jones received an honorable discharge in 1959, where he got a job at the Veteran Affairs Medical Center. He retired from the VA in July 2014 after 55 years of employment. He was a lifetime member of the NACCP, a member of the Greater Kansas City History Study Group, member of the Congress for Racial Equality (CORE), and a member of the "Black Agenda" group, a think tank. Jones was also a member of the Second Baptist Church; he served as a Deacon and Chairman of the Deacon Board. He was also a member of the Celestial Choir and Men's Choir at Secon Baptist.

Historical Sketch:History of Spirituals:

Spirituals, as a music genre, are identified as religious folksong and are rooted in American slavery. This type of song usually consists of leader led improvisation followed by call and response. Spirituals are also often called 'sorrow songs' as they are melancholic in nature. During the Civil Rights Movement in the mid-20th century, spirituals, along with gospel songs, were also often used as protest songs or 'freedom songs.'

History of Gospel Music:

The musical roots of gospel date back to 19th century revivals, yet the genre really grew in the early 1900s alongside ragtime, blues, and jazz. The 1940s and '50s are known as the Gold Age of Gospel Music, and much of it was centered in Chicago. While its rise in popularity began in the 1920s thanks to the advent of radio, Thomas A. Dorsey (1899-1993), a composer known as the 'Father of Gospel Music', is often credited as the source of gospel's ascent to its golden age. He was a prolific writer, and in 1932 he created one of the first church choirs and became one of the founders of National Convention of Gospel Choirs and Choruses. He is also credited with the first use of the term "gospel music". Since Chicago's was the center for gospel music, it was also the center of the gospel music publishing industry. Initially, music publishers simply printed and sold sheet music, it wasn't until much later that the publishing houses expanded their reach into copyright management.

Martin and Morris Music:

One of the longest running, and most important gospel music publishing houses was Martin and Morris Music. In 1933, Sallie Martin (1896-1988), often called the "Queen of Gospel Music", was a singer, philanthropist, and civil rights activist. She started the Sallie Martin Singers, and she helped found the National Convention of Gospel Choirs and Choruses alongside Dorsey. She joined the Dorsey House of Music publishing company in '33. Kenneth Morris (1917-1989), a composer, arranger, and publisher at the Bowles House of Music, left Bowles in 1940 and partnered with Sallie, to launch Martin and Morris Music Company. Martin and Morris became the largest gospel publishing house in America. According to the Smithsonian, "Martin and Morris Music Company was the only music house that would publish compositions by others than themselves during the peak years of Gospel music (ca.1945-1965)." Kenneth bought Sallie out in 1973, and in 1975, she disbanded the Sallie Martin Singers. Later, Kenneth also purchased Theodore Frye, Roberta Martin, Bowles, and Beatrice Browns' catalogues. By the time Morris died, Morris and Martin was the sole remaining gospel publishing house in America. After Kenneth's death in '89, his wife, Necie, ran the company until 1993.
